“ Enjoying her 91st birthday. She always enjoyed parties and dancing and just having a bunch of people gathering so she could visit with everyone. And if she wasn't sure who you were, she remembered you as someone else. There isn't a day or even an hour I don't think about her and miss my mom (nana) so much. But I realize she is in a better place. No dementia, no pain, and no worries. She don't want us worrying and being sad. She wants us to be happy. Well mom I love you and you mad me who I am. You may not have given birth to me, but you were still good and you gave me life and made me who I was. I'm sorry if I didn't do something right for you but I tried and I never could live up to how well you cared for me. But know my love for you was greater than anyone I ever loved and will always be. I miss you terribly and feel this big while in my life where you were. You were my Nana, as mom and my best friend. And it's like I lost 3 people. You were the family I was born into but also the family I chose and I was lucky you were in my life and I was a better person because of it. I am basically alone with no one and i am looking forward to the day I get to see you again. I realize when people turn their backs on you it's because they regret it hat actions they chose and they can't admit to themselves they caused it or had a part in it. But the also don't realize their actions now in addition to what they did...make it worse for you and one day I hope they see the pain they caused ...but they will have to deal with it. Anyway mom I love you so much. And I will see you sometime. And it will be the happiest day of my life. God bless you mom and everyone else. I love you! From your oldest grandchild and your youngest adopted child.

Mom, I love you with all of my heart. I miss you more than you can ever know. I lost my best friend and I am so sorry that no one told me you passed until after you were gone. I know you did not deserve to go out the way you did. I had your funeral paid for and they chose to cremate you instead Dad (Pete). I know it doesn't matter in the long run because you are in a much better place now. You are happy and with Dad. I know you both look over me. I am now alone with no family that really talks to me. But you raised me right. You will always be my mother and I your child. you didn't have to give birth to me, but you were always my mom. You never threw me away for any reason. And no matter how often they took me away from you I always returned because no one could ever take that place. I still cared about the others people, but they couldn't accept or break the bond we had. I love you and miss you more than anyone can know and think about you every day. I know you are happy where you are, its not so easy for me to be where I am but I am trying to be. You don't have to worry about me anymore. I am grown. I may be alone, but you raised me to be tough and take care of myself no matter what. I have made it almost 3 years in these streets and I am going to be ok. You taught me to love but also be independent and never have to rely on anyone. You are the reason I have and can make it through all this. So please hello to Steve and give pop a kiss for me. I know he has been looking over me since he left. Tell him I love him also and miss him also.

Your youngest child and the one who loves you the most and misses you terribly
