“Joan was a talented assistant and trusted friend who was always generous with her time and able to tackle any challenge. Her organizational abilities were prodigious and she always knew what was happening in the newsroom before anyone else. She helped make my years at The Morning Call truly memorable. My deepest sympathy to her family and her hundreds of friends.

“Joan was like a den mother to so many of us in the newsroom of the Call-Chronicle papers. She made sure reporters had all the notebooks, pens and educational expenses needed to do their jobs; she filed, typed and answered executives' calls; and helped the whole operation run more smoothly. Joan got the job done with humor, aplomb and tact. And, on her own time, she and Marie Lathrop organized some of the best parties for employees, retirees and family members. Thank you Joan and thank you to her family for sharing her with us.
