slipped away into the next room. Nothing has happened. Everything remains exactly as it was. I see it, and you see you, and the old life that we lived as family together is untouched, unchanged. Whatever we were to each other, that we are still. Call me by the old familiar name. Speak of me in the way you always used. Put no difference into your tone. What so forced air of solemnity or sorrow. Laugh as we always laughed at the little jokes that we enjoyed together. Play, smile, think of me, pray for me. Let my name be over the household word that it always was. Let it be spoken without an effort, without the ghost of a shadow upon it. Let it mean all that it ever meant. It is the same as it ever was. There is absolute and unbroken continuity. What is this death but a negligible accident? Why should I be out of mind because I am out of sight? I am but waiting for you, for an interval, some-
